

Kuilen dorp

A short story by Lucas de Vaan

Kuilen dorp

meet the protagonists

Addi is an 83-year-old woman who enjoys the company of her close-knit neighbourhood. She loves reading but does not often lend out books since the nearby library closed. She often has trouble with modern devices and could use some support with them.

Iris is a 21-year-old student who loves spending time with her friends. She does not read many books, but she would appreciate a pleasant place where she can have a drink with friends and study in groups, as she studies Communication. She would also love to have a cinema or presentation room nearby; a flexible space that can serve multiple purposes.

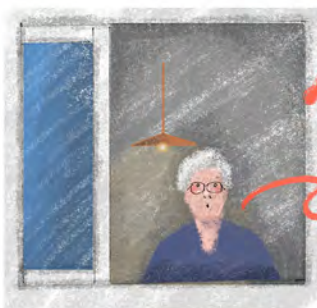

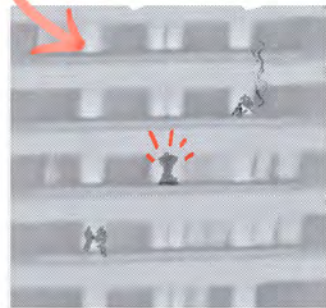

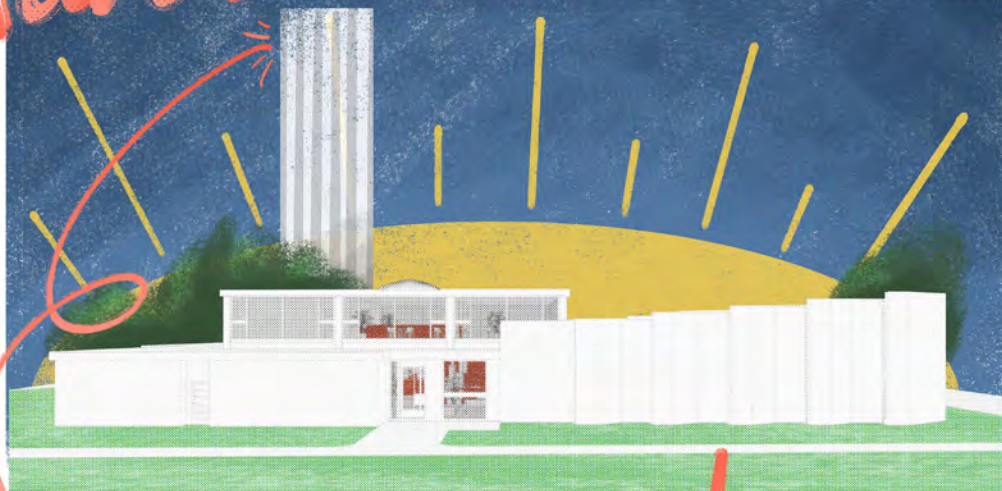

Paula is a 53-year-old elementary school teacher. She enjoys visiting the library and appreciates that her local library offers many functions that support the community and encourage social interaction. Drawing on her experience as a teacher, she believes that children need engaging spaces that attract them to the library and encourage them to read more. She particularly values children's play areas that are open-ended rather than fully prescribed, as well as the inclusion of auditoriums and other flexible community spaces.

Part I - Dawn

Some where at dawn
on Antwerp's left bank....

Addi
83 years old

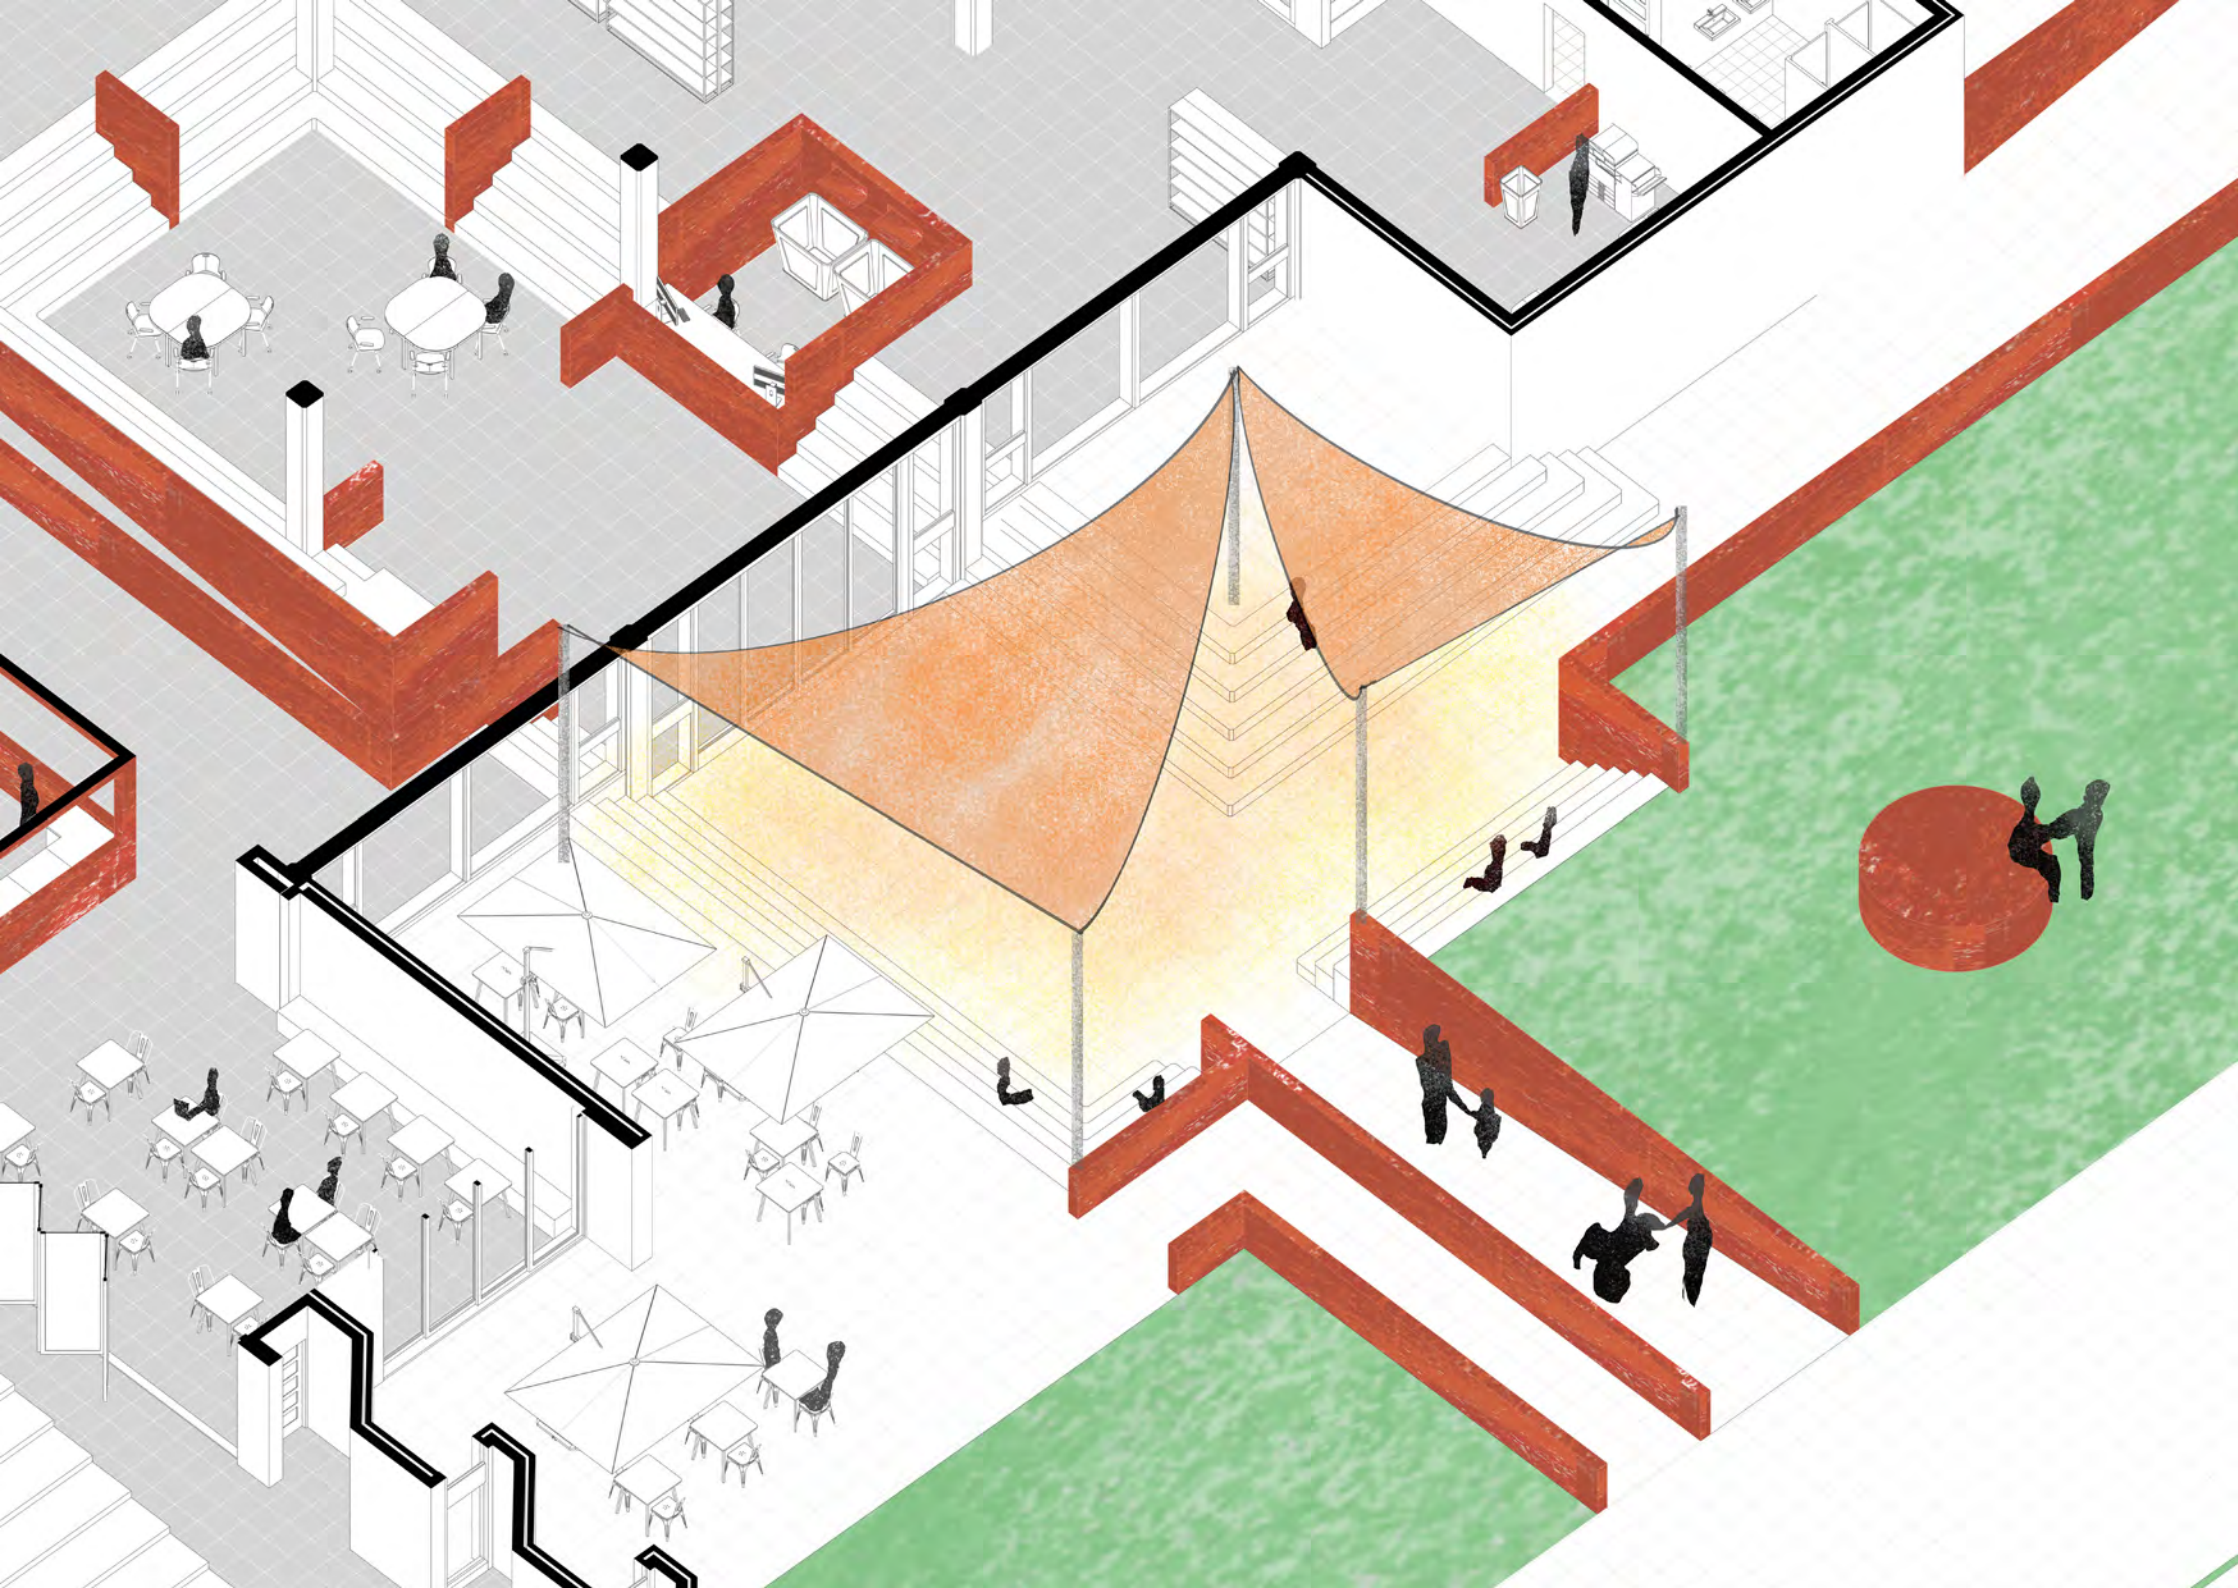

Ugh...!
They make phones
way to hard to use nowadays. I'll ask for help at the library

Some time later
Addi is on her way to the Elsschot library....

Addi

Good morning Addi,
Come join us! 😊

I'll be right there! First I need to bring my phone to the repair café!

Hi Miss!
How can I help you?

Hi! See, I cannot seem to unlock my smartphone to send a message to my granddaughter Can you assist me with this?
Oh! and one coffee please!

Of course! We can go through it together. Let me make you a coffee first!

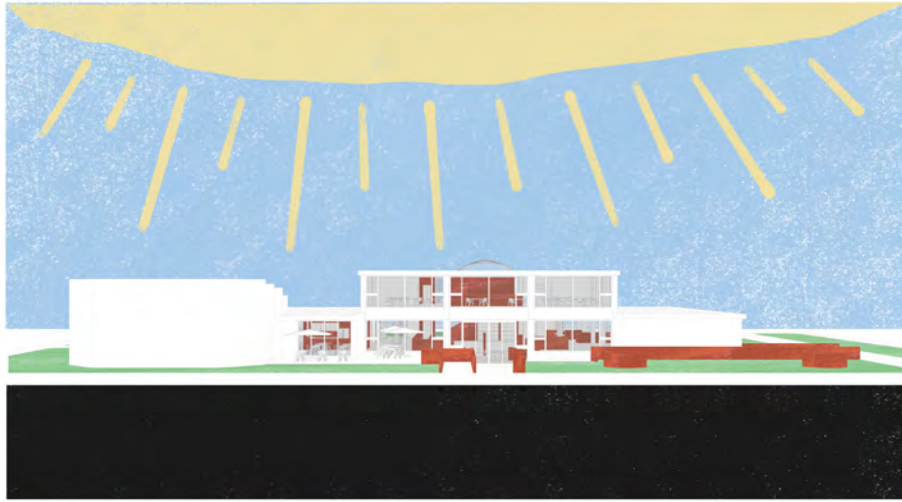

Hey Iris!
I hadn't seen you there! How is your presentation coming along?

Hey Oma! 😊
Still have to prepare a lot! I think I'm going upstairs soon....

Part II - Noon

I hope there's still seats available upstairs :)
